MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE.

Interesting Facts in the Lives of Famous Men.

Ralph Waldo Emerson, John McCullough, Bartley Campbell, Charlie Johnes, Tony Hart.

A Dramatic and Thrilling Picture Worthy of a Balzac or a Dickens.

Ten years ago there was no such word as paresis. It cannot be found in Webster's dictionary. Now it is part of the vocabulary of every man who thinks and reads. Why? Simply because it has crept into the language, as the horrible disease which bears its name has crept into the braid of many men.

Bartley Campbell was a brilliant and successful playwright. Paresis claimed him. Insanity and death followed.

Charlie Johnes the most brilliant member of the New York Stock Exchange, followed Campbell. It used to be "what Charlie Johnes said, bought, sold, and how he dressed," in Wall street, six years ago. Now he is not even a name; Paresis.

John McCullough, the great tragedian, died of softening of the brain—paresis.

Tony Hart was the next victim. Paresis set in. He was taken to Bloomingdale, where he died a few years ago.

George Knight, the famous actor, followed Hart; same cause, paresis. William Scanlan followed him; same cause, paresis. Harry Kernall followed Scanlan; same dreadful cause, paresis.

Bright's disease is a consumption of the kidneys. Consumption is a wasting away of the lungs. Paresis is a consumption of the brain.

Paresis comes to overwrought brains; to men who burn the candle at both ends, and in the middle; to men who turn day into night and night into an inferno. It comes to men who cannot sand sunpress. It comes to men who cannot control the appetites.

In the third stage the victim is going to do wonders. He is going to revolutionize things. He is abnormally good-natured, but he cannot get away from himself and his schemes for two consecutive minutes. The big I punctuates almost every sentence. The second stage comes. The victim forgets names. He often has to stop a few seconds before he can recall familiar names. He is nervous, restless, fretful, and has sleepless nights during which he awakes tired and exhausted. He is always in a hurry. He listens instead of talks. He looks at his friends in the most pathetic manner, unconsciously.

He drifts into the third stage. He thinks that his enemies are as the sand on the shore. He grows moody and depressed in mind. He is always pre-occupied. He speaks in monosyllables. He neglects his dress and has no care of his personal appearance.

The fourth stage finds him at a loss for words. He begins a sentence, but never finishes it. He speaks as if he had two tongues in his mouth. He acts and talks so extravagantly that his friends induce him to enter a carriage for a little drive to an out-of-town hotel. The hotel turns out to be an asylum for the insane.

He appears to rally as the days go by. In reality, he does not. He sits for hours at a time gazing at nothing. That is the saddest scene of all. He tries to recall things. It is pitiful to watch him. You have him look at you as if for help. Week after week he grows more helpless. In time he is like a year old baby. Then he dies.

There is a way out of this dreadful situation, in its early stages. It may be prevented. It does not invariably come from dissipation; for Ralph Waldo Emerson died of it, and Guyde Maupassant is dying from it.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy will cure victims in the early stages of paresis. It will feed the brain tissues and fill the brain cells. It will make new blood and muscle. It will make the nerves strong. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy always arrests paresis and prevents it if taken in time. Take it when the first symptoms appear and you are saved. It is a purely vegetable compound. It is harmless and the most valuable remedy in the world. It has cured thousands and thousands of human beings of deadly ills. Dr. Greene, the successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, is the discoverer of it. He can be consulted, personally or by letter, at his office, 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., free of charge.

"ITCHING PILES—FOR 30 YEARS" CURED!!

MR. SMITH IS A HIGHLY RESPECTED CITIZEN OF GARDINER, ME.—A MASON IN GOOD STANDING AND A FORMER MEMBER OF THE M. E. CHURCH FOR 25 YEARS. HE SAYS:

"I am now 67 years old and for more than 30 years was afflicted with ITCHING PILES in their worst form. The suffering I endured can only be understood by those who are afflicted with this terrible disease. I tried almost countless remedies both advertised and prescribed, but to no avail. Six or eight months ago on returning to my home after a day of labor and suffering, I found a Messenger of Mercy in the form of your papers; after a careful perusal I purchased a box of and resolved to give it a thorough trial. Saw no improvement at first, but when the fifth bottle began to see good results, and thanks to your wonderful medicine, I am free from the agony which has been my constant companion 30 years. I take great pleasure in heartily recommending DANA'S SARSAPARILLA. Yours truly,

WM. B. SMITH"

A Strange Story of a Clock.

In the year 1700 the widow of a poor clergyman named Herold lived in the small town of Libau, in Courland, says a writer in the Jeweler and Metal Worker. She was exceedingly charitable. One winter night an officer passed through Libau on his way to the army. He asked at the inn for a warm beverage, but could obtain none; he applied in vain at several private houses, but not until he knocked at the clergyman's widow's door was he able to obtain a dish of hot tea.

Before he resumed his journey he offered the widow money for her trouble, but she declined it. He had a lottery ticket in his pocket, the prize for which was a clock said to be worth £12,800, and the widow accepted the ticket as a souvenir. The ticket remained a long time in a drawer, and her children played with it so often as a "picture" that it was well nigh in pieces.

The number which drew the valuable prize was meanwhile repeatedly announced in the newspapers, but no one came to claim the clock. One day a gentleman entered the widow's house, and seeing the mutilated lottery ticket, glanced curiously at it and was amazed to discover the oft advertised number of the ticket which had drawn the capital prize in the clock lottery. He informed the widow of her good fortune and she obtained the prize.

The Emperor of Russia then offered the woman £3200 and a life annuity of £160 for the clock. She accepted the imperial offer and the clock is now one of the chief ornaments in the Winter Palace in St. Petersburg. The exterior represents an antique Greek temple and the interior contains two orchestras, which play together one of the most celebrated arts of Mozart's "Don Juan." The widow strove to obtain the name of her unknown benefactor, and although the Czar ordered the police to aid her, all her efforts were in vain.

AN EXCITING SCENE.

A "Reformed Catholic Priest" Assaulted on the Lecture Platform.

Pistol Shots by the Score Frighten the Audience.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Jan. 27. Prof. George P. Rudolph, formerly a Catholic priest at Cleveland, Ohio, attempted to lecture at the Opera House, last evening, under the auspices of the American Protection Association. The subject was, "Why I Left the Roman Church." Soon after the opening of his discourse, a mob broke in the rear door of the house, rushed on the stage and attacked the speaker. Rudolph was knocked down with a club, and on rising drew a revolver and fired two shots. This brought a regular fusillade from all parts of the house, which was crowded. A stampede at once ensued, and while screams rent the air, a rush was made for the doors. Many women were thrown down in their efforts to escape. The crowd was finally ejected from the stage and Rudolph continued his lecture. The police were unable to keep the crowd in the gallery quiet and the meeting was adjourned. Between fifteen and twenty shots were fired, but no one was hurt. The mob waited outside, but under a strong guard Rudolph was escorted to his boarding house.

LIGHT OF GOEBEL'S GENIUS.

It is Said That a Poor Inventor, and Not Edison, First Made the Electric Arc.

Electrical circles all over the country are anxiously awaiting the result of litigation now in progress in Boston which will probably definitely settle the question of the invention of the incandescent electric light. This is a suit by the Edison Electric Light Company against the Beacon Electric Light Company. Arguments are now in progress. The defendants claim that Henry Goebel invented and used the incandescent lamp long before Edison claims to have invented the carbon filament, which is the primary basis of these lamps. Goebel was a German who is said to have been highly educated and to have possessed an inventive genius far in advance of his age. He came to this country in 18—and established a little shop for the manufacture of galvanic batteries in Monroe street, this city. Shortly after his arrival, it is claimed, he astonished his neighbors with exhibitions of electric arcs from the roof of his house. This caused an alarm of fire to be sent in and as "Big 6" could not locate the fire, Goebel was arrested for a breach of the peace. He then abandoned the arc light and turned his attention to something less powerful.

In 1859, it is alleged, he decorated his telescope wagon with an incandescent lamp, or lamps, as he is said to have had several, as an additional means of calling the attention of the public to the chance he offered for searching the starry firmament. He is even claimed to have used bamboo for this purpose. The defendants in the present suit claim to have found several of the old lamps used in his experiments.

It is said that when examined under a magnifying glass the fact becomes apparent that the filament is made of a carbonized woody fibre, apparently bamboo. Moreover, the fibre is claimed to resemble that now in use by the Edison Company in size and shape. It is claimed that Goebel previous to 1874, when he moved away, was in the habit of setting up series of his incandescent lamps and exhibiting them to his customers and friends.

His failure to apply for a patent for his invention is explained on the theory that he was unfamiliar with the laws of this country and also that he did not realize the value of his invention as a commercial commodity until it had been for a long time in use.

Goebel is still alive, and his testimony, as well as that of others who remember his lamp is said to be very clear that he really invented the incandescent electric lamp. The Edison Company claims that this is merely another effort to rob the "Wizard" of his invention. The recent termination of the suit between the Edison and Westinghouse companies to determine who invented the incandescent lamp resulted in favor of the former. This, it was supposed, gave the Edison Company a monopoly of the incandescent lamp and placed all other companies at the mercy of that company.

This, too, accounts for the interest taken by the electrical world in the pending suit. While the Edison people are evidently sanguine of success in this suit also others in the electric light business claim that Goebel has a good chance of being pronounced the real inventor. There are many millions of dollars involved in the issue.

She has been a wife about three months, and got into her own new little house a week ago. Day before yesterday she was going home, about half-past four o'clock, and as she passed the last grocery up that way a thought struck her and she went in.

"Have you," she said to the smiling clerk, "any minced ham?"

"No, miss—ma'am," he replied, in doubt.

"Pshaw!" she exclaimed, "are you sure?"

"Quite so, ma'am; we sold the last this morning; but will have some here tomorrow, if you can wait."

"But I can't wait. Charlie is so fond of minced ham, and he told me to be sure to have some this evening. It's too late for me to go back down street now, for he will be home by the time I get there, and what shall I do?"

"Possibly I might get you something else, ma'am?"

She hesitated between conflicting emotions for a minute or more.

"I don't know," she said at last, putting her pretty little foot impatiently, "but I might make some bacon powder do for the evening. Have you any bacon powder?"

Then it was the clerk's Napoleon's fact came to his rescue, and gracefully retiring to look for it among the hams, he sent out the proprietor, who broke the news to her gently, and Charlie got no minced ham or its possible substitute that evening.

LIGHT OF GOEBEL'S GENIUS.

It is Said That a Poor Inventor, and Not Edison, First Made the Electric Arc.

Electrical circles all over the country are anxiously awaiting the result of litigation now in progress in Boston which will probably definitely settle the question of the invention of the incandescent electric light. This is a suit by the Edison Electric Light Company against the Beacon Electric Light Company. Arguments are now in progress. The defendants claim that Henry Goebel invented and used the incandescent lamp long before Edison claims to have invented the carbon filament, which is the primary basis of these lamps. Goebel was a German who is said to have been highly educated and to have possessed an inventive genius far in advance of his age. He came to this country in 18—and established a little shop for the manufacture of galvanic batteries in Monroe street, this city. Shortly after his arrival, it is claimed, he astonished his neighbors with exhibitions of electric arcs from the roof of his house. This caused an alarm of fire to be sent in and as "Big 6" could not locate the fire, Goebel was arrested for a breach of the peace. He then abandoned the arc light and turned his attention to something less powerful.

In 1859, it is alleged, he decorated his telescope wagon with an incandescent lamp, or lamps, as he is said to have had several, as an additional means of calling the attention of the public to the chance he offered for searching the starry firmament. He is even claimed to have used bamboo for this purpose. The defendants in the present suit claim to have found several of the old lamps used in his experiments.

It is said that when examined under a magnifying glass the fact becomes apparent that the filament is made of a carbonized woody fibre, apparently bamboo. Moreover, the fibre is claimed to resemble that now in use by the Edison Company in size and shape. It is claimed that Goebel previous to 1874, when he moved away, was in the habit of setting up series of his incandescent lamps and exhibiting them to his customers and friends.

His failure to apply for a patent for his invention is explained on the theory that he was unfamiliar with the laws of this country and also that he did not realize the value of his invention as a commercial commodity until it had been for a long time in use.

Goebel is still alive, and his testimony, as well as that of others who remember his lamp is said to be very clear that he really invented the incandescent electric lamp. The Edison Company claims that this is merely another effort to rob the "Wizard" of his invention. The recent termination of the suit between the Edison and Westinghouse companies to determine who invented the incandescent lamp resulted in favor of the former. This, it was supposed, gave the Edison Company a monopoly of the incandescent lamp and placed all other companies at the mercy of that company.

This, too, accounts for the interest taken by the electrical world in the pending suit. While the Edison people are evidently sanguine of success in this suit also others in the electric light business claim that Goebel has a good chance of being pronounced the real inventor. There are many millions of dollars involved in the issue.

THE PROPOSED SAVINGS BANK LAW.

[From the Kennebec Journal.]

The proposed new Savings Bank Law is causing considerable discussion, and much interest is felt to ascertain exactly what its practical effect would be.

The following table, which has been prepared with great care, shows just the amount which each State has invested in Maine, and the amount invested in other States. It also shows what the tax on each bank would be under the new law, as compared with the tax for the year ending April 30, 1891. These figures show the precise bearing of the proposed law and will repay careful study:

| | Investments in Maine. | Investments out of Maine. | Tax under proposed law | Tax for year ending April 30, 1891. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Androscoggin County Savings Bank | $881,107 00 | $315,881 71 | $7,232 47 | $7,547 54 |

America's Great Dead Passes Away This Evening.

The Country Grief-Stricken over the Death of James Gillespie Blaine.

Bereaved Family the Recipients of Sincere Messages of Sorrow from all Sections.

Simple and Unostentatious Funeral Obsequies to Occur in Washington Monday.

WASHINGTON Jan 27 James Gillespie Blaine died at eleven o'clock all night as removed from the house in which he had resided until death Mr Blaine's condition throughout the day had been such as to preclude hope from the first and had been studiously concealed through official channels of communication

Mr Blaine for his death bed was surrounded as he had almost intensely for work by those who were nearest and dearest to him In fact it was only his own family and the very closely associated with them that have been permitted to see or even hear from him during the last few days of his life

Dr John Fox was summoned to the bedside of Mr Blaine by the morning but his presence was not known to the public until 11 10 when in response to a call Dr Hyatt left the house Both physicians were unusually pale and when questioned by reporters for the latest news a significant look in their faces answered the question

He is Dead Said Dr Johnson

and he passed away peacefully The doctors hesitated to give the exact time of his death but it was proved about 10 45 when a watch in the room of the sick man was slightly raised The news of Mr Blaine's death spread like wildfire and was gathered in the corridors of the hotel by the crowd Word was sent to the house immediately after his death at 11 20 President Harrison and Secretary Halford and Private Secretary Halford and Legislative Clerk walked over to the Blaine mansion The President remained a brief time and then returned to the Ebbitt House

A Change for the Worse Occurred

But little was known until death Mr Blaine's condition until a few hours before that time only the extreme members of the family could perceive that the end was near All the members of the family and Mr Dodge were at his bedside at the last

Dr Johnston said Mr Blaine's death was not sleep exhaustion He was conscious to take a statement regarding the last days of Mr Blaine until he had received the consent of the family

WASHINGTON Jan 27 The President issued the following proclamation

It is my painful duty to announce to the people of the United States the death of James G Blaine which occurred in this city at 11 o'clock For a full generation this eminent citizen has occupied a conspicuous and influential position in the public eye His first public service was in the legislature of his State Afterwards for thirteen years he was a member of the National House of Representatives and was three times chosen Speaker He resigned his seat in that body to accept the position of Secretary of State in the Cabinet of President Garfield After the tragic death of his chief he resigned from the Cabinet and withdrew himself to literary work and to the public in his Twenty Years of Congress a most valuable and enduring contribution to our political literature In March 1881 he again became Secretary of State and continued to exercise this office till June 1892 His devotion to the public interests his marked ability and his exalted patriotism have won for him gratitude and affection of his countrymen and the admiration of the world In the varied pursuits of legislation diplomacy and literature his genius has added new lustre to American citizenship as a suitable expression of national appreciation of his great public services and of the general sorrow caused by his death I direct that on the day of his funeral all departments of the Executive branch of the Government at Washington be closed and that on all public buildings throughout the United States the national flag be displayed at half mast and that for a period of thirty days the Department of State be draped in mourning

Message to Legislature

STATE OF MAINE
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
AUGUSTA, Jan 27, 93

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives

For weeks the eyes of the American people have been turned toward the Capital of the Nation This morning, at eleven o'clock, James G Blaine, the matchless debater, brilliant orator, and able statesman, died in the city of Washington In these halls, he began his distinguished public career We recall with pride his patriotic utterances, in early life to the people of Maine Perhaps all things else the national life must be viewed He loved his State and believed in her people Political affiliations have never estranged the deep affection entertained for him by his countrymen Men of all parties mourn his death but their grief is most keenly felt by our people for they claimed him as their own I have directed that the national flag be displayed at half mast, upon the public buildings of the State, and during the funeral service all the Departments of the Executive branch of the State Government will be closed I trust the Legislature will take appropriate action in honor of the memory of the illustrious dead

Adjourned to 2 o'clock for action relating the death of Mr Blaine

President Calls at the Blaine Mansion

WASHINGTON, Jan 27 The President on his visit to the Blaine mansion, was met at the door by James G Blaine Jr, who was interrupted by the call while engaged in writing a note to the President informing him of his father's death In answer to a question Mr Blaine, Jr said to the President that his father's death had occurred quite unexpectedly When the change in his condition was noted by the attendants the end came very quickly

I was preparing to go to the office,' said Mr Blaine, 'father having passed a very quiet and comfortable night, apparently with no change in his condition Neither observing that the nurse was not in the room at the time suggested that I had better remain until she returned I did so, and when the nurse came back the symptoms had changed so decidedly within the past few minutes that messengers were at once despatched for the doctors Father was conscious most of the time in these latter days and able to speak occasionally to us Near the close I think he recognized the several members of the family

Cabinet Council

This was the regular day for the meeting of the Cabinet The members began to arrive shortly after the death of Mr Blaine was communicated to the President and upon being informed of the fact they repaired to the house and left messages of sympathy for Mrs. Blaine and family The Cabinet assembled at 12 30 and remained in session a few minutes during which time the proclamation announcing the event was agreed upon and issued President Harrison said the news of Mr Blaines death made a very profound impression upon him While recognizing the fact from the statements of physicians and members of the family that ultimate recovery in Mr Blaine's case was improbable he was wholly unprepared for it at this time and the announcement was a great shock to him.

He felt unable under the circumstances to enter upon the consideration of any public business with members of the cabinet, most of whom were associated with Mr Blaine in official family relations, therefore after the expression of regret and sorrow at the loss sustained by themselves and the country in Mr Blaine's death, the meeting of the cabinet adjourned.

President Harrison asked Senator Frye to call at the White House to consult with him, as a representative of Mr. Blaine's State, with regard to arrangements for the Funeral of the Deceased Statesman.

Senator Frye arrived at the White House while the cabinet was in session and joined with them in deliberations over the sad event. He stated that when he received the President's message he was discussing with the Senators at the Capitol the same subject. It was their general opinion that Mr. Blaine should have a public funeral at the Capitol Of course there was no opportunity to consult with members of the family on the subject but Senator Frye had no doubt they would interpose no objection to this honor being paid the memory of Mr. Blaine.

Funeral to Occur Monday.

At 1.30 it was stated by friends of the family that the funeral arrangements to the determination upon were that the services be held Monday forenoon and the remains will be, at least temporarily, interred here in Washington city. When the funeral will be public or private, or who but the selected from among Mr. Blaine's personal and official friends None will be chosen because of position, but naturally a large proportion will be from the ranks of official life They will be announced tomorrow Arrangements for the funeral were communicated this evening to President Harrison and Baron Fava, Dean of the diplomatic corps

This evening Mr Blaine sent a note to President Harrison in response to the message of sympathy he left this morning with Mr Blaine, Jr

Many messages of condolence and sympathy have been received by the family from men of both political parties

Among the number were Governor Brown, of Rhode Island, Flower of New York Chief Justice Fuller, Mayor Chase, of Augusta, Me Governor Pattison, of Pennsylvania, Governor Crounse of Nebraska, Governor Cleaves, of Maine, Robert T Lincoln, minister to Great Britain, Grover Cleveland, who said 'His brilliant statesmanship will always be an inspiration to the nation he has served so long and well Permit me to extend my sympathy on the death of your distinguished husband, Hon Fred N Dow of Maine and Governor McKinley of Ohio

Senator Dawes brought to the house the following telegram he received

The undersigned appointed by the Legislature will arrive in Washington -saturday morning to request in behalf of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts that the body of Mr Blaine may lie in state in the State House on the way to Augusta, and will call upon you on arrival

Signed) A G PINKERTON
W E BARRETT

All members of the cabinet who were interviewed to-day paid a glowing tribute to Mr Blaine The death of Mr Blaine occasioned great regret among the members of diplomatic corps at the Capitol with nearly all of whom his relations were quite intimate Mr Blaine's death was occasioned the postponement of many social entertainments fixed for the next few days

Senate

WASHINGTON Jan 27 The Senate met this morning in the gloom which the intelligence of Mr Blaine's death naturally cast over that body all over the Capital The silence was appropriately not disturbed by the opening prayer of Chaplin Butler

As soon as the reading of yesterday's journal was completed Mr Hale, one of the deceased statesman's closest friends arose and announced the death He said

Mr President we are again summoned into the presence of death A very great man has passed from this earth Hon James G Blaine died in his house at this city at 11 o'clock this morning His long illness had in some measure prepared for that but this dread event will carry sadness and mourning throughout the United States and will awaken interest and sorrow wherever a civilized man lives on the face of the globe

Mr Blaine's career was so remarkable and his public services so great that in all histories which may be written of his times he will stand as the central figure not only as to his own country but on the policies and subjects that affected other great nations

He belong Mr President, not to any one State, but to the whole country and Pennsylvania which gave him his birthplace and nurtured him and Maine where he made his home and where he gained her first citizen, and which filled his life with all the honor which she could bestow mourn him no more to-day than do the dwellers by the shores of the great gulf and in the cabins of the far Sierras

This is not the time or place for me to pick out detail of his distinguished public life. He was for years a distinguished member on the floor of the House of Representatives of the Nation and for six years presided their as its Speaker His services in this chamber covered years He was twice Secretary of State and was until late, a member of the present administration I do not think there is on Senator who will not deem it fitting in view of the events and of the fact that he died where his last peaceful look from his chamber window might embrace this Capitol where has voice had been so many times heard, that we make a precedent at this time and that although Mr Blaine was at the time of his death a private citizen this body take an immediate adjournment

Mr Cockrell arose and said In view of the announcement by the Senator from Maine, of the sad event which has just occurred, under the very shadow of the national Capitol, as a mark of further respect to the memory of the illustrious dead I move that the Senate do now adjourn

The Vice President put the motion and at 11 20 declared the Senate adjourned until to morrow

Maine's Sympathy

AUGUSTA, Jan 27 Gov Cleaves sent the following message to Mrs Blaine

Gov McKinley's Sympathy

A Remarkable Career.

James G. Blaine was born on the 31st of January, 1830, a the Indian Hill Farm, Washington County, Penn., in a house built by Mr Blaine's maternal grandfather, Mr Neal Gillespie He comes from an ancestry noted for loyalty and patriotism his great grandfather being Colonel Ephraim Blaine, of Carlisle, Pa, Commissary General of the Revolutionary Army, from 1778 to the close of the struggle in 1783 At the age of eleven Mr Blaine was sent to Ohio to obtain better advantages of education stopping at the home of his uncle, Hon Thomas Ewing. His cousin, General Thomas Ewing, was his class mate He was graduated at Washington College in September, 1847, sharing the first honors in a class of 93, with Mr John Hunyeg.

Mr Blaine selected for his graduating oration the theme 'The Duty of an Educated American' Looking upon it in the light of to-day, the oration displayed a far seeing judgment which was indicative of the statesman of riper years Mr Blaine was not one of those, if such existed in those days, who, as a college graduate idled away his time about home and among the surrounding social attractions, but at once put on the harness and set himself at work in the struggle for position and fortune

After graduating Mr Blaine taught awhile as college tutor in Kentucky and Pennsylvania wrote for newspapers and magazines, and engaged in the study of law, though he did not engage upon its practice While a teacher of mathematics in the Military Academy at Blue Licks Ky, he became acquainted with Miss Harriet Stanwood, whose home was in Augusta Maine and made her his wife

Soon after he returned to Pennsylvania and, after devoting some time to the study of the law, he became a teacher in an institution for the blind at Philadelphia where he remained two years having charge of the higher classes in literature and science and its on record by his principal that his brilliant mental powers were exactly qualified to enlighten and instruct the interesting minds before him

In 1854 he removed to Augusta Maine where he purchased, with Hon John L Stevens a half interest in the Kennebec Journal, in which through the merchant writing and peculiarly facility which he possessed, he became well known as a leading spirit in the politics of this State

He was a delegate to the first National Republican Convention in 1856 which nominated John Fremont to the Presidency In 1857 he became editor of the Portland Advertiser and in 1858 was elected as a Republican to the Legislature from Portland Re elected to the Legislature for four successive terms, during the last two of which he served as Speaker thus being at the outbreak of the Civil War Mr Blaine too much distinguished a parliamentarian and by the forensic ability displayed in the debates which that crisis provoked

In 1862 he was elected to Congress, being elected Speaker in 1869 a position which he held until 1875 when the Democrats obtained a majority in the House

There were old men in the halls of Congress in those exciting and important days and Mr Blaine proved himself the peer of them all and was equal to every occasion During his first term he was rarely in debate, but was constantly equipping himself, by a close study of the rules of the House and of our history and precedents in Congress and proceedings to grapple with the great questions which he should have His ability, however, was always cast on the right side and recorded in the interest of the masses life and honor Thus in the 38th Congress and before the close of the 40th his fame was as widespread as the nations broad domain and he had found and secured to himself the title of The Plumed Knight, and the acknowledged leader of the House, a title made historic by the nominating speech of Col Ingersoll of Cincinnati in 1876

During the six years that he held the position of Speaker he was not absent from his post a single day

Among the important matters which he engrossed not only the attention of Congress but of the people of the country, and which received the support of Mr Blaine were the propositions in regard to the re establishment of the seceded States, through the giving in their adherence to the 4th amendment to the Constitution on the basis of impartial suffrage on the payment of the public debt, in giving cubans which he vigorously opposed, of the protection of American citizens abroad, as well as at home whether by the naturalized and in which secession the British Nation came out second best and were forced to abandon their claim of 'once a subject, always a subject,' and accepted the American idea of equal protection to native and adopted citizens, as embodied in the treaty of 1870

Mr Blaine's administration of the Speakership during the six years of his incumbency, was among the most noted and brilliant of an equal number of years in the history of the government His aptitude for the duties of the position and his understanding of its requirements his complete mastery of parliamentary laws his rapid despatch of business and his remarkable dexterity and physical ability all united in making him one of the foremost and exalted Speakers which the House had ever had

In 1876 he was elected to the United States Senate, resigning his seat in 1881 to enter the Cabinet of President Garfield as Secretary of State His candidacy before the Republican National Convention of 1876 for the Presidency, his defeat due to the mistrust in regard to his health on a count of the sun stroke received by him on June 11th of that year, just as the train bearing the Maine delegates arrived in Cincinnati, is a matter fresh in the memory of those who were in that delegation, and only less so in the memories of all the Republicans of the State

The first announcement made of the news was by Hon Hannibal Hamlin, who, just after the train had stopped approached a friend and said "This is terrible!" 'What?' asked the person addressed "Blaine is dead, or dying" And then he related the contents of the despatch received which threw a gloom over the great body of delegates and onlookers assembled which it was impossible to eradicate The opposition to Mr Blaine, aided by the fears of his inability to outlive the campaign, made a compromise possible by which Mr Hayes was nominated by a vote of 384 to 370. The contest in 1880, at Chicago, in which General Garfield obtained the nomination on the thirty-sixth ballot, lasting through six days, is historic On the first ballot the vote stood 304 for Grant, 284 for Blaine and 108 scattering James A Garfield having one. On the final ballot the friends of Blaine and Sherman united on General Garfield, who was nominated by a vote of 399 to 306 for General Grant.

Mr. Blaine was tendered by President Garfield the office of Secretary of State which he held until the assassination of President Garfield, when he resigned, not however, without having made important movements, first, to secure and preserve peace throughout the continent and second, to cultivate close commercial relations and increase our trade with the countries of North and South America.

When Mr. Blaine entered the State Department, war was raging between the governments and people of Chili and Peru and in its progress and the correspondence with other countries growing out of it, he asserted and maintained the paramount claims of this country regarding the neutrality of the Panama canal and the connection of this country with the Colombian republic.

The death of President Garfield threw the shot of assassin Guiteau and the assumption of the Presidency by Vice President Arthur, was he occasion of Mr Blaine's resignation and retirement from the cabinet

Upon the retirement of Mr Blaine from the Cabinet in December, 1881 he was, for the first time in twenty-three years, out of public station He soon entered upon the composition of an elaborate historical work entitled "Twenty Years of Congress" of which the first 20 pages give a succinct review of the earlier history of the country followed by a more detailed mention of the events from Lincoln to Garfield

On the assembling of the National Republican Convention in 1884 it was evident that the supporters of Mr Blaine had abated no whit in their loyalty or enthusiasm, and the first ballot stood 334 votes against 278 for Chester A Arthur and the remainder of the votes divided On he fourth ballot he received 541 out of a total of 813 and was nominated The bitter canvass which followed, Mr Cleveland being the Democratic candidate, and the election turning on the result in New York State, which was lost to Mr Blaine by a vote of 1 047 will long be remembered Mr Blaine took an active part in the State canvass of 1886, presenting the old hery question, the issue of free trade versus tariff, and the third party prohibition movement

In 1888 although absent in Europe and writing letters declining the nomination he was strongly urged by his friends for the Presidency, and hoping but hopeless and unqualified refusal prevented his nomination Had he been nominated it is unquestioned that he would have been elected by a large majority as the country has never before had such an admiration for the gifted son of Maine as had been produced by his masterly service as Secretary of State and his far seeing and able foreign policy

The reputation as a diplomatist acquired by Mr Blaine as Secretary of State under President Garfield, was immeasurably outstripped in his occupancy of the same post on in the Cabinet of President Harrison, during which time some of the most important international questions in the history of the country was under discussion including the Behring Sea seal fishery controversy and the difficulty with Chili and with Italy The results of the controversies in those cases always in favor of the American position are too fresh in the memory of our readers to require reiteration To the most added the great project of reciprocal trade with the South American countries which he had long been a subject of profound study on the part of Mr Blaine and which was so successfully inaugurated during his administration of the State Department.

There was a strong demand for Mr Blaine's candidacy in the early part of 1892 He himself did no want the nomination and in February wrote a letter to Chairman Clark on saying that he would not be a candidate This for a much felt effect of quieting the people who received the idea that his health would not permit of the strain of a Presidential canvass, after it was announced that his health was very much improved, and the demand for his nomination was urged by the party renewed vigor In June Mr Blaine resigned his seat in the cabinet, and it was then thought that nothing could prevent his nomination But not a few who would have finally been for him by this time become committed to other candidates

The administration is always in a position to exert a strong influence upon a convention and as the President was himself a candidate the convention was controlled in his interest by delegates who were elected for the purpose He received that President Harrison was nominated on the first ballot In the campaign that followed Mr Blaine stayed at home for use in Maine, in which he discussed the questions involved and later he made a speech at the country residence of Whitelaw Reid, the Vice Presidential candidate on the Republican ticket

The history of Mr Blaine's illnesses through the loss of his eyesight and daughter are too fresh in the recollections of the readers of THE WHIG to require even a reference while his sufferings during his long weeks of illness have drawn to him the sympathies of all The death of his beloved daughter Alice wife of Col Coppinger, his son Walker Assistant Secretary of State, and Emily his second daughter have been such test to the fortitude of a man and father as few could stand, and that they have had a serious effect upon his own health none could undertake to deny

Intensely devoted to his family there is, following one upon another of the closest and most tender ties of his children could but have a depressing influence upon him and aggravate the disease with which he was afflicted During the campaigns in which he has taken part as an advocate of Republican doctrines his speeches have been models of eloquence, conciseness and logical position and in a whole series, when from one to three or four daily were expected of him he never repeated himself His records of speeches will long be perused as models not only of expression, but of the American idea, of which he was par excellence the exponent

From his public works only is Mr Blaine known to many, if not most of his most ardent eulogists, but it is only those who have had the privilege of personal and home acquaintance with him who knew the man fully, and they know that it would be difficult, if not impossible, to produce from the men of the day or the history of the records of the past a career that could undergo a closer scrutiny than that of Mr Blaine One of the kindest and most considerate of friends he was always cordial to affectionateness, and as a public man loyal and earnest regard less of toil or trouble to himself, his devotion to both friend and country was rarely, if ever equalled

To the sympathies of the entire country THE WHIG would add, in their terrible affliction, its profoundest sympathies to the bereaved family, Mrs Blaine, Mr James G Blaine, Jr, Mrs Walter Damrosch and Miss Hattie Blaine

News in this City

The history of Mr Blaine's last sickness has been told from day to day in the telegraphic columns of THE WHIG The news of his death while not unexpected was none the less a shock to the community and the bells were tolled for an hour throughout the city The announcement of the death of Mr Blaine issued by a bulletin from THE WHIG office immediately upon the receipt of the sad news caused a universal feeling of sorrow, and expressions of deep regret were heard on every hand Mayor Beal at once ordered all the bells to be tolled, which was one for an hour between 2 and 3 P. Doesn't "lock" as she ought—the weak, nervous and ailing woman. As long as she suffers from the aches, pains, and derangements peculiar to her sex she can't expect to.

But there's only herself to blame. With Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, she's a different woman. And it's a change that can be seen as well as felt. The system is invigorated, the blood enriched, digestion improved, melancholy and nervousness dispelled.

With the "Favorite Prescription," all the proper functions are restored to healthy action. Periodical pains, weak back, bearing-down sensations, nervous prostration all "female complaints" are cured by it. It's the only medicine for women's weaknesses and ailments that's guaranteed to do what is claimed for it. If it doesn't give satisfaction in every case for which it's recommended, the money is returned.

Can something else offered by the dealer, though, it may pay him better, be "just as good"?

BREWER LOCALS.

Miss Minnie Cochran left yesterday for a short visit with friends there.

Mrs. Nancy Bates and Mr. Harry Bates, of East Bucksport, were in the city yesterday,

Mr. W. E. Lane, who has been confined to the house by illness is again able to get out some.

The weather was colder yesterday although the mercury did not get very low, but it was a fine winter day.

Only one car was running on the electric railroad yesterday afternoon, the other one being off for repairs.

Quite a number of people from this city went to the Lake House, in Dedham, Thursday evening, and a pleasant time resulted.

Mr. John Cannon is engaged in sawing spool wood at the mill near the foot of Phillips lake in Dedham. Quite a quantity is being got out.

The regular weekly meeting of the Teachers' Bible class was held last evening, with Mrs. Jasper Hutchings, at her home, on Main street.

Miss Lettie S. Doas, of South Brewer, spent a portion of this week in East Orrington, visiting her friend, Miss Maria George, of that place.

Mr. Henry Harlow began yesterday cutting a stock of ice for some of the tracers. He is taking it from the field left by Messrs. E. H. & H. Rollins.

Mrs. H. P. Sargent and Miss Sue Sargent, of South Brewer, have joined Representative H. P. Sargent in Augusta, and will remain during the session of the Legislature.

Superintendent Sparks, of the Water Department, was called to Old Town yesterday morning by a telephone message announcing that a large water main had burst in that city.

Mrs. M. M. Baker, of West Roxbury, Mass., who has been here, called by the illness and death of her mother, the late Mrs. Lydia McMahon, of Eddington, has returned to her home.

Messrs. D. Sargent's Sons of South Brewer, have finished work at the ice houses here and the crew have been transferred to the lower Union houses, only a portion of the houses at South Brewer have been filled and about 15,000 tons have been put up.

Mr. and Mrs. Erastus Severence, of East Orrington, celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary on Tuesday evening of this week. Quite a number of their friends had been invited to their home in that village and came, bringing some very nice presents for the happy couple. Refreshments were served, and the evening was spent in a most enjoyable manner.

As soon as the warmer weather of spring comes, Messrs. E. H. & H. Rollins will have the derrick and engine house at their new ice plan clapboarded and then the buildings will all be painted a dark red. This is at once all there is to be done to complete the plant and when it is finished the establishment will be a first class one. During the time that ice was being hoisted the new elevator worked excellently, and no breakdowns occurred, which was rather unusual for new machinery.

The regular weekly meeting of the South Brewer Church Society was held for work Thursday afternoon in the chapel at the end of the city. In the evening a social was held. Quite a number of people were in attendance and it proved a very pleasant affair. A supper was served and the following programme of entertainment was excellently given: Newsboys' chorus, five boys reading, Miss Mary Neal; "The Flower of the Family," charade, Bible characters; singing by the S. S. Quartette; recitation, Mr. Fred Hogg; "Our Trouble with a Mouse."

The wood and bark haulers and other woods operators in this vicinity are having fine weather for their work and now have sufficient snow to enable their operations to go on rapidly. Loaded teams are a frequent sight passing through the city, and horses and men that had no employment the first of the winter, during the time when the ground was bare of snow, now have work to do, a much more satisfactory condition of affairs. Many of them, of course, found employment in the ice business, but that lasts but a few weeks at most, and all were waiting for the woods operations to begin in earnest. But few teams or teamsters are now seen standing idle, nor will be so long as the present favorable conditions for work last.

The members of the Universalist church at East Eddington, and of the various societies connected with it, have been working hard to pay off the church debt and for other objects and are meeting with much success. A birthday supper given by the ladies on June 24, realized about $7.50, and on the same evening the Earn-A-Dollar club paid $82 to the church treasurer. Mr. Jones, of Veazie, has contributed $25, and the Sewing Circle. ### Warning to Cattle Dealers.

Peter Dougherty, a cattle dealer, doing business in the Twenty-seventh ward, was convicted before Judge Reed in Quarter Sessions Court No. 2, of cruelty to animals in allowing six calves under one year of age to remain for a long time without proper nourishment.

Judge Reed said that as this was an early application of the law he would not inflict a severe punishment in this case, but he wished it to be understood that upon a similar state of circumstances he would do so in the future. This man had assumed care of these animals, and was bound to look after them until they passed out of his ownership. He had fed them on Paint them away at five o'clock on Monday afternoon, the 26th of December, and had not resumed possession of them until Thursday again until late the following Wednesday. It had not been the person whom he thought would buy them, but with whom he had made no contract, and when notified by the officers of the law that the calves were in a plight were they could not get by food he defendant allowed twenty-four hours to elapse before he sent for them. It was a stain upon the civilization of the community when the law compelled men to be good care of harmless animals under their control, and while only a fine would be imposed in this case, in the future the sentence would be more severe. He [illegible] was ordered to pay a fine of $10 and costs or [illegible] security in $1,000 to be of good behavior.

MAINE MELANGE.

People Victimized by Traveling Picture Agents.

Matters of Interest from Many Different Places.

Aroostook.

H. B. Richards, the well-known hotel man of Exeter, was in Caribou a short time last Thursday, being accompanied by E. A. Shepherd, of Dexter. The Republican understands that Mr. Richards has purchased the Windsor Hotel, Fort Fairfield, and will take possession of that popular house next month.

The blasting daily on the line of the B. & A. Railroad in the north part of Houlton, sounds very much like cannonading in the distance.

In digging out a water pipe in front of J. A. Miller's store on Court street, in Houlton, it was found that the ground was frozen to the depth of about four feet.

The Benevolent Society of Caribou is doing a grand work among the poor families of this section, and many people have cause for blessing the ladies connected with this society, which was organized December 12, 1892, and has been very successful. Thus far they have placed one hundred and fifty garments in different needy families.

Two of Caribou's best-known physicians drove fifteen and one-half miles in one hour and five minutes one day last week, and this, too, without trying to make a record.

The young men of Caribou are talking of organizing a brass band. There is good material for a first-class band in this village.

Hancock.

Mr. Drew M. Shaw has so far recovered his health that he will attend to the management of the West End Hotel, at Bar Harbor, himself, the coming season and will be in Bar Harbor early in April to superintend improvements and repairs necessary to make this hotel second to none in the country.

It has been hard work to keep the channel open from Bar Harbor to the Ferry, and has entailed lots of hard work on the crew of the Sebenoa. Scarcely has a night passed but what they have been out nearly until daybreak cruising up and down the bay and hunting the ice. By this way only has communication been kept open.

The Green Mountain Carriage Road Company has put in a bill to the Legislature authorizing it to maintain a toll carriage road in the town of Eden, beginning at the foot of Green mountain at Eagle Lake road and extending to the summit of the mountain. The company is supposed to take the road as for public purposes by right of eminent domain.

Knox.

October 11, the E. D. Noyes stove foundry, at Waterville, was destroyed by fire and was a total loss. Wednesday the new furnace was warmed up for the first time, and a large number of stove castings were turned out. Business will be lively here the coming year.

Piscataquis.

The young man who blows out the gas purchased a small quantity of powder in Milo store the other evening. He put it in the pocket of his coat and started home, smoking his pipe. After he had finished smoking, he put the pipe in the same pocket with the powder. A spark remained in the bowl, and as sparks will do when they get at gunpowder, caused a serious commotion. The young man suddenly found himself enveloped in a sheet of flame, if he wasn't too scared to know what he was enveloped in. Some gentlemen on the other side of the street heard the explosion and were surprised by the pyrotechnics.

Somerset.

Frank York, of Fairfield, who escaped from Kennebec jail nearly three weeks ago, was recaptured near Skowhegan, this week.

Waldo.

Last summer a traveling picture agent canvassed Belfast, and probably several other places, agreeing to furnish large crayon portraits, framed, at a very low price. He got several orders and before leaving each house collected a portion of the price in advance. A few weeks later another agent came along with samples of frames, stating that the first had no authority to include the frames in the price given, the latter raising the frame orders. His prices were also very low for the kind of work offered, but he got the orders and another installment of the price. After he had been gone several weeks the customers received letters from the "house" stating that when another installment was paid the pictures would be forwarded. In some cases this was sent, but the pictures are not forthcoming.

Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. McMann, an aged couple, who have lived at East Bay, on the road between Eastport and Pembroke, died within a few hours of each other on Friday of last week. Some three thousand dollars in gold was found in their bed. They left one child, a son, who passed through the city, Sunday, from his home in Nova Scotia.

York.

A boy named Furbush, of Kennebunk, was arrested at Saco for damaging a fence in the city, and when his mother heard of his arrest she fainted and dropped the boy from her arms, and the child fell up in the stove and was burned badly.

THE ADVERTISING of Hood's Sarsaparilla is always reliable, the goods of genuine merit because it's true; it always appeals to the sober, common sense of thinking people because it's true; and it always fully substantiated by endorsements which, in the financial world would be accepted without a moment's hesitation.

For a general family cathartic we confidently recommend Hood's Pills. 25c.

Stop That Hiccough.

"Why don't you stop that hiccoughing?" said a gentleman to a friend who for some moments had been subjected to the annoying convulsive movement of the diaphragm.

"I wish I could," gasped the victim, "but it's no go. A fellow tried to scare me—said my coat was on fire—knew it wasn't—swallowed nine times nine swallows of water—no go—feel like a washed out hand engine," he ejaculated angrily, having told his woes in disjointed utterances and between coughs.

"Well, you are a chump," remarked the first speaker. "Come with me." And he led his friend into an adjoining saloon.

"No, not here," said the other; "people will surely think I've been drinking."

But his protests were in vain. His friend led him to the bar and ordered a heaping spoonful of powdered sugar.

"Come," he said, "swallow this all at once." The victim did so slowly, and found to his no great surprise and relief when the operation was completed that the hiccoughs had vanished.

"Now," remarked the first gentleman, "for teaching you that remedy I'll take just one with you. It is not a part of the process, but it's worth the price, isn't it? As for the sugar, I have never known it to fail to cure even the most stubborn case of hiccoughs."—New York Herald.

London's Fatal Fogs.

The fog that enshrouded the town from November, 1879, to the beginning of 1880 had serious results. The deaths from bronchitis increased to 831 per cent. above the average; those from whooping cough to 231 per cent. During the fog of 1891-2 mortality increased almost as much. The particles prevent the perfect aeration of the blood. Interfering with the interdiffusion of gases in the lungs, they impede the oxidation of the carbon, and in weak organisms they cause a loss of vital heat that frequently ends in death. The effect of smoke fog on vegetables may be properly taken as an index of its effect on animals.

Horticulturists in and around London tell us that whenever the fog appears buds drop and many flowers are destroyed. On every horticulturists, on the other hand, say that the white fogs do not injure even conservatory plants. The fogs of 1890, 1891 and 1892 were unusually serious in their effects on flowers and foliage. During recent years the blight caused by London fog extended to Maidstone, thirty miles away. It would seem, then, that the area of the smoke fog is sixty miles in diameter.—National Review.

The Shah.

The smallest detail is submitted to the shah and is not decided except upon his authority. His ministers disavow all initiative and tremble at any executive responsibility. Imperious, diligent and fairly just, the shah is in his own person the sole arbiter of Persia's fortunes. All policy emanates from him. He supervises every department with a curiosity that requires to be constantly appeased, and his attention, both to foreign and domestic politics, is constant and unremitting. There is a consensus of opinion that he is the most competent man in the country and the best ruler that it can produce.

Nor will any one deny him the possession of patriotism and of a genuine interest in the welfare of the nation. It is no mean criterion of the strength and also of the general popularity of the shah that he is the first Persian monarch who has ventured to leave his dominions and travel in foreign and infidel lands, not as a conqueror at the head of an army but as a friendly visitor, if not as a volunteer tourist.—"Persia and the Persian Question."

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
